FUND REVIEW

The Fund ended Q3 2022 with a market value of BWP 3.45 billion from BWP 3.05 billion at the end of Q2 2022. Liquidity and risk management remain paramount, while we also continue to pursue yield enhancement opportunities in credit and bank funding markets.

MARKET OVERVIEW

The annual inflation print averaged 14.2% during Q3 2022, up from 11.4% in Q2 2022, and 10.4% in Q1 2022. Key to the increase has been the Transport index, which has been driven by retail fuel pump price adjustments. Core inflation (excluding energy, food and administered prices) has remained at 8.0% for the three months to October 2022. Both headline and core measures have printed consistently above the Bank of Botswana's (BoB) 3% to 6% target since the early parts of 2021. Although the headline inflation figure has since dropped to 13.1% in October 2022, after reaching 14.6% in August 2022, the risks of entrenched inflation expectations have increased. The Q3 2022 Business Expectations Survey (BES) from the BoB points to firms' expectations of domestic inflation increasing compared to the prior survey. Local companies now expect inflation to average 12.5% in 2022 (from 8.5% in the prior survey) and 10.5% in 2023 (from 7.9% in the prior survey).

Real GDP was up 5.6% y/y in Q2 2022, but down 1.5% q/q. The mining & quarrying sector declined 3.4% y/y and 10.1% q/q as diamond and gold production dropped 4.3% and 8.3% respectively. Notably the non-mining sector grew 5.6%, supported by 7.6% and 4.6% growth in household and government spending respectively. Of concern was the 4.6% decrease in gross fixed capital formation or business investment. Higher input costs and supply chain issues are likely factors still impacting the ability of businesses to invest in buildings, plant, machinery and equipment. The broader economic recovery is however still under way, with economic activity now 6.4% ahead of its Q1 2020 level.

The Government yield curve was up between Q2 2022 and Q3 2022. The 3-month, 6-month and 12-month T-bill rates rose 128bps, 176 bps, and 131 bps respectively. In contrast the 9-year, 18-year and 21-year bond rates increased respectively by 8bps, 23 bps and 30 bps.

OUTLOOK

Our expectation is for inflation to continue printing above the BoB's 3% to 6% objective range for the rest of 2022 and well into 2023. The path will largely depend on the trajectory of global oil prices, and any subsequent adjustments by the Botswana Energy Regulatory Authority (BERA). In September and October BERA reduced fuel prices, reversing some of the upward adjustments they had made since July 2021. The Bank held its policy rate at 2.65% during its October meeting after the September fuel price adjustments brought inflation down from 14.6% in August 2022 to 13.8% in September 2022. This suggests that the November 2022 print will be lower given that the October 2022 fuel price reductions were larger than the September ones.

We anticipate the banking sector's funding market to continue experiencing pressure, albeit to a lesser degree than prior quarters. This will be due to the continued economic recovery, and spending from the Government. Opportunities for yield enhancements in the money markets should continue, especially compared to longer duration and credit risk.

Real GDP growth is projected at 4.2% for 2022 and 4.1% for 2023 by the Government. Key to this will be continued strength in the diamond sector, fiscal spending, and the post-SOE recovery.
